HARTWICK SEMINARY.

---

LOCATION.

This Institution is located in Otsego County, N. Y., four miles south of Cooperstown, in the beautiful valley of the Susquehanna. The situation is elevated and remarkably healthy. It is entirely removed from any causes that might have a prejudicial effect upon the morals of the pupils. To all parents wishing to give to their children a moral and physical as well as intellectual training, it especially commends itself.

COURSE OF STUDY.

ACADEMICAL DEPARTMENT.

Pupils are instructed in all the branches of a thorough English education. In addition to to which, they may receive instruction in all the higher branches of Mathematics, Natural and Mechanical Philosophy, Botany, &c.; also, in the Latin, Greek, French, and German Languages. Great attention paid to English composition and elocution.

THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

The course of Theological instruction corresponds as nearly as possible with that of the Gettysburgh and other respectable Theological Institutions. The Library contains all necessary text books, together with a large number of standard Theological and Philosophical works.

---

Expenses.

Instruction in the English branches per term, 14 weeks,	$4,00
“ “ Classical “ “	6,00
Room rent in the Seminary edifice,	1,00
Boarding, $1,25 per week,	17,50
Total expenses of a Classical Student,	24,50

Those wishing it, can procure boarding, including lodging, fuel, lights, washing, &c., in respectable private families in the neighborhood, at from $1,50 to $1,75 per week.

Theological instruction is gratuitous. Young men connected with the Lutheran Church, who design subsequently to study Theology, can likewise receive, gratuitously, their Classical education, upon giving to the Principal proper certificates of character, together with an obligation to pay the usual tuition, should they afterwards conclude not to enter the Lutheran Ministry; their expenses per term of 14 weeks, need not exceed $20.

SEMINARY BUILDINGS, LIBRARIES, &c.

The original Seminary edifice is a large building, containing the Chapel, Library and Recitation rooms. To this has been added two capacious wings, containing a large number of suitable rooms for the accommodation of students.

In addition to the Theological and Classical Libraries, which contain over 1000 volumes of rare and valuable works, the Literary Society has an extensive collection of excellent miscellaneous books. The Institution is also furnished with excellent Philosophical apparatus.

SESSIONS

There are three sessions in the year, commencing on the first Monday in October, the second Monday in January, and the 3d Monday in May.

The delightful location of the Institution, the lowness of the terms, and the variety of branches taught, present peculiar advantages to young men who may be desirous of obtaining a complete Academical and Theological education, especially to those who labor under the disadvantage of limited means.

✂ The Principal may be addressed at either the Cooperstown or the Hartwick Seminary Post-Office.
